You simply need to use the information on it to file your taxes. Differences Between Form 1095-B and Form 1095-C Photo Courtesy: kate_sept2004/Getty Images Form 1095-C is exclusively for health insurance that large employers provide directly to workers. If you want to claim the Premium Tax Credit, you use the information from your 1095 form to fill out Schedule 3, Line 8 on your tax return. If you get a 1095-B form, you need some of the information on it to file your taxes and the IRS may use the form to determine whether you should receive a tax credit based on health insurance. If you or your dependents receive coverage both from your large employer and the Marketplace, you can receive both forms. For example, a single parent may file taxes as a head of household. If you receive either or both of the forms, you can rest assured that the IRS already has a copy of the form. The establishment responsible for the form in most cases, your health insurance company completes it on your behalf and sends it to the IRS. Workers' compensation and medical discount plans don't qualify, either. Or, you can receive your total credit as a lump sum at tax time. According to the IRS, this form is sent to individuals who had health coverage for themselves or their family members that is not reported on Form 1095-A or Form 1095-C. If you applied for insurance directly from the Marketplace, you receive Form 1095-A. So, the taxpayer would also receive a 1095-C Form for their dependents. You don't have to worry about filling anything out on it, though. Qualified plans offer adequate health insurance coverage and meet the Marketplace standards for costs to the individual. Some taxpayers receive both 1095-B and 1095-C forms for a calendar year. This form also documents the coverage a person has received and helps to determine if they receive a Premium Tax Credit for the year. Whether you get a policy through the affordable care market or your employer provides it for you, there are several different ways health insurance affects tax returns. Time is a new year Rolls, different entities start sending out health insurance related tax forms that you will need when preparing to file for the previous calendar year. If the company where you work has more than 50 employees and receives health insurance benefits through work, you will receive Form 1095-c. These examples do not meet the essential minimum standards of coverage. How to use Form 1095-B when you are filing taxes in the photo Courtesy: Rgstudio / Getty Images The way people use Form 1095-B for filing has evolved as laws surrounding health coverage have changed. Some jobs offer low-cost coverage that covers only specific diagnoses. Photo Courtesy of Hill Street Studios / Getty Images Health insurance is one of the most essential forms of insurance that any of us can buy. This form, along with your income, is compared with the information you originally provided to the marketplace when you applied for health insurance. You can choose to receive this payment throughout the year as a subsidy paid automatically to your insurance company. Some physicians who prefer not to use insurance offering membership programs in which patients pay the physician a monthly fee to receive discounted medical services throughout the year. More from AskMoney.com and while you are probably already familiar with its importance when it comes to covering the cost of medical treatment, did you know that it can also affect your taxes - particularly the way you file?
